

Kosmos Energy Confirms Long-Term Commitment to Ghana By Creating Independent Advisory Council

September 8, 2014

ACCRA, Ghana, 8 September, 2014 – Kosmos Energy Ghana HC, a wholly owned subsidiary of Kosmos Energy Ltd, announced today the creation of an independent advisory council to enhance the company's ability to support Ghana's needs as a developing economy. By listening to the advice and insights of respected business leaders, Kosmos is preparing to play a more active role in helping Ghana reach its full potential. Creating this independent advisory council confirms Kosmos' long-term commitment to Ghana and supports its business interests for the benefit of both Ghanaian society and Kosmos' shareholders.

Members of the new advisory council include Philippe Ayivor, a retired executive of The Coca-Cola Company; Felix Addo, Country Senior Partner of PricewaterhouseCoopers Ghana; Seth Kwasi Dei, Founder of Leasafric and Blue Skies Ghana Limited; and Ishmael E. Yamson, non-executive Chairman of Unilever Ghana Limited and Standard Chartered Bank Ghana Limited, and former Chairman of Ghana Investment Promotion Centre (GIPC).

Speaking on the formation of the advisory council, Ken Keag, Vice President and Country Manager of Kosmos Energy Ghana said, "We are pleased to have such respected business leaders join our council of advisors. Their individual and collective knowledge and experience will add great strategic insight to Kosmos' work in Ghana as we celebrate 10 years of success and look toward an even brighter future."

Philippe Ayivor said, "International companies working in Ghana have a role to play in helping the country reach its full potential. Kosmos believes in our future and recognizes that its success is tied to Ghana's overall prosperity. I am pleased to be a part of their advisory council."

Felix Addo said, "It is reassuring to see a global SEC registrant reaffirm its commitment to Ghana and devote significant resources to creating and realizing a shared agenda that is mutually beneficial to both company and country."

Seth Kwasi Dei said, "Job creation and broad economic development are the best legacies that a company can give its host country. After 10 years of investment in Ghana, Kosmos continues to increase its level of engagement and wants to be a part of creating our country's future. With my business background and expertise, I can support their efforts."

Ishmael E. Yamson said, "Kosmos has a healthy and realistic understanding that its continued success is linked to the promise of Ghana's future. The creation of an independent advisory council is a strong signal that Kosmos takes this matter seriously and wants to better understand local perspectives, challenges, and opportunities."

About the Members of the Advisory Council

Philippe Ayivor is a retired executive of The Coca-Cola Company where he spent close to 30 years leading various functions across the company. For a decade, he was the general manager charged with delivering Coca-Cola's business growth objectives for thirteen countries in West and Central Africa. Prior to his retirement, he became the public face of Coca-Cola in nine countries in West Africa and a representative of The Coca-Cola Africa Foundation in North and West Africa with responsibility for enhancing the company's social license to operate. Prior to joining Coca-Cola, Mr. Ayivor was a management consultant for Accenture in Houston, Texas. He is currently the President of the American Chamber of Commerce, Ghana and serves on the boards of UT Holdings, The Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Ghana, The Zawadi Africa Education Fund-Ghana and United Way Ghana. Mr. Ayivor earned a bachelor's degree in economics and sociology from Duke University and a master's degree in accounting from Virginia Tech.

Felix Addo, Country Senior Partner of PricewaterhouseCoopers Ghana, has more than 25 years of practice and consulting experience in corporate finance and recovery, financial and forensic auditing, organizational restructuring and performance improvement in both developed and developing economies. During his notable career, Mr. Addo has worked on a number of important projects, including the privatization of Ashanti Gold Fields Limited and Ghana Commercial Bank, and served as the transaction advisor to Government of Ghana on the acquisition of VALCO. He was the fairness reporter for the merger of AngloGold and Ashanti Goldfields Limited. In addition, Mr. Addo served as a member of the Attorney General's business law reform committee and experts. He is currently a director of the Ghana American Chamber of Commerce; President of AIESEC, a student-managed global youth network impacting the world through leadership development; and president of the Ghana Association of Restructuring and Insolvency Advisors. Mr. Addo earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of Ghana and a master's degree in accounting from Loyola University in Maryland.

Seth Kwasi Dei, Founder of Leasafric and Blue Skies Ghana Limited, is one of Ghana's most successful investors with shares in multiple businesses in the areas of leasing, insurance, pharmaceutical manufacturing, fruit processing and marketing. He began his career working for a leasing company in New York and Abidjan, Ivory Coast, and later served as senior vice president in charge of the company's operations in six francophone countries in West Africa. Mr. Dei studied agricultural economics at Cornell University after which he graduated in finance and journalism from the Columbia University Graduate School of Business and Journalism.

Ishmael E. Yamson is a seasoned and well-known corporate executive in Ghana. He joined Unilever Ghana in 1966 from the University of Ghana and worked for the company for 38 years in various capacities, including the last 18 years as Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. During that period, he restructured the company and set it on a path of sustained growth for more than 15 years. Dr. Yamson has also been deeply involved in the development of Ghana's private sector, having played key roles in various associations, including Ghana Chamber of Commerce, Executive Board of the International Chambers of Commerce, Ghana Employers' Association, and Ghana Private Enterprise Foundation. He was a founding director of the Ghana Stock Exchange and a founding member and director of the Centre for Policy Analyses. Until recently, he was also member of the National Development Planning Commission and Chairman of the President's Economic Advisory Council. Dr . Yamson holds a bachelor's degree in economics, with honors, from the University of Ghana. He has received two national honours, namely: The Order of the Volta, The Companion of The Order of The Volta, and an honorary doctorate degree, Honoris Causa, from the University of Ghana, Legon.
